

The fox left the vineyard humming a tune.

He was walking on the grassland when he felt hungry.

Suddenly, she sensed danger. There was a big bad wolf not far ahead.

The fox was cunning, and his eyes rolled to his heart and (Chinese expression) he got an idea

He said: Big Brother wolf, don't eat me. Look at what fun I bring for you

The fox pulled one blade of grass from the ground and held it in front of the wolf

"Isn't that just a piece of grass? Don't try to fool me," said wolf.

"Brother wolf, this is no ordinary grass. This is little lamb's favorite. If you have this grass, you can have a plump lamb to eat every day.

There is such a magical thing ! said wolf lead me find this grass! (Confusing)

The wolf followed fox to the vineyard

The fox pointed to the high grape trellis and said that the magical grass is between the vine of grapes.

Only someone as noble as Brother Wolf can reach it.

The big bad wolf said it's too high to reach.

The fox said don't worry about that wolf brother, I will lift you up.

So, the fox used all his strength to lift the wolf above his head.

"Higher, higher, get a little higher!" wolf said

"Brother wolf, you are so heavy, I can't hold you anymore"

Suddenly the fox let go of his hand, and the wolf was slammed to the ground with a thud.

The fox looked at the big bad wolf howling on the ground and knew that he would not be able to catch up with him for a while, so he hummed a little song and left.
